This is a map of Medieval lime kiln off Castle Lane, Bedford. The map is an A4 sized map and should be printed full size at A4 with no page scaling set. The official record contains a map, with new entries from 1988 onwards including a digitally created map as part of the official record. For entries before 1987, a hand-drawn map forms part of the official record. The process of translating the map may have introduced inaccuracies. Copies of maps that form part of the official record can be obtained from Historic England. The map was delivered electronically and may not be to scale and may be subject to distortions. All maps and grid references are for identification purposes only and must be read in conjunction with other information in the record. For more information, visit HistoricEngland.org.uk.
